

SUMMARY OF EXPERIENCE

Throughout my dynamic 28-year career, I have immersed myself in the intricate realm of policy development and implementation, honing my expertise through diverse leadership roles in academia, non-governmental organizations, and prestigious UN agencies such as UNIFEM, UNDP, and UNEP. Within these esteemed organizations, I have been instrumental in crafting gender-responsive strategic interventions that drive institutional success, focusing on critical areas such as poverty alleviation, good governance, and sustainable environmental management.

Over the past 16 years, my passion for championing gender equality and social inclusion has been unwavering, particularly in bolstering the resilience of women and girls amidst environmental degradation. My journey has equipped me with a profound understanding of the nuanced interplay between climate impacts, vulnerability, and risk, enabling me to amplify the voices of structurally excluded women and girls both in Africa and on a global scale.

As a member of various leadership teams, I have spearheaded the formulation of disruptive strategic policies and innovative interventions, consistently delivering tangible results in alignment with organizational goals. Academically, I hold a PhD in Law from the University of Warwick, a Master of Laws from Columbia University, a Bachelor of Laws from the University of Nairobi, and a Diploma in Women's Law from the University of Oslo.

In my spare time, I am an avid Rotarian and I give my services and time to the improve lives of the less fortunate in society.
